Foucault in an Age of Terror
Also by Stephen Morton

GAYATRI SPIVAK: Ethics, Subalternity and the Critique of Postcolonial Reason
SALMAN RUSHDIE: Fictions of Postcolonial Modernity

Also by Stephen Bygrave

COLERIDGE AND THE SELF: Romantic Egotism
KENNETH BURKE: Rhetoric and Ideology
USES OF EDUCATION: Readings in Enlightenment in England
WRITERS AND THEIR WORK: Samuel Taylor Coleridge
Foucault in an Age of Terror

Essays on Biopolitics and the Defence of Society

Edited by

Stephen Morton

and

Stephen Bygrave
Contents

Acknowledgements vii
Notes on the Contributors viii

Introduction 1
Stephen Morton and Stephen Bygrave

1 Life Struggles: War, Discipline and Biopolitics in the Thought of Michel Foucault 14
Julian Reid

2 Poetry Must Be Defended: Post-Waterloo Responses to ‘Power’s Ode to Itself’ 43
Simon Bainbridge

3 Sovereignty, Biopolitics and the Use of Literature: Michel Foucault and Kathy Acker 63
Alex Houen

4 Michel Foucault: Biopolitics and Biology 88
John Marks

5 Biopolitics, Biological Racism and Eugenics 106
Clare Hanson

6 Some Reflections on Foucault’s Society Must Be Defended and the Idea of ‘Race’ 118
David Macey

7 War and Peace, or Governmentality as the Ruin of Democracy 133
Lucy Hartley

8 Necropolitics 152
Achille Mbembe

9 Torture, Terrorism and Colonial Sovereignty 183
Stephen Morton
Contents

10 ‘Manual for a Raid’ and ‘Henslowe’s Diary’: Foucault and the Multiple Meanings of the Document 196
   Rebecca Fensome

11 Foucault, Auden and Two New York Septembers 215
   Stephen Bygrave

Index 230
Acknowledgements

Most of the essays in this book originated as papers in a seminar series at the University of Southampton in 2004–5, and we are grateful to colleagues and students in English and the School of Humanities for their participation and support. Among them, special thanks must go to Peter Middleton as Head of English and to one of our contributors, Lucy Hartley, who suggested the series. Thanks also to Rana Dasgupta and Monica Narula of Raqs Media Collective, Delhi, to Melanie Blair at Palgrave Macmillan and to Ruth Willats.

The publisher and editors thank the following for permission to reproduce earlier versions of three of the chapters included in this volume:

Julian Reid, ‘Life Struggles: War, Discipline, and Biopolitics in the Thought of Michel Foucault’, in Social Text, Volume 24, no. 1 (Spring), pp. 127–52. Copyright 2006, Duke University Press. All rights reserved. Used by permission of the publisher.
Notes on the Contributors

Simon Bainbridge is Professor of Romantic Studies and Co-Director of the Wordsworth Centre at Lancaster University, UK. He is the author of Napoleon and English Romanticism (1995) and British Poetry and the Revolutionary and Napoleonic Wars (2003).

Stephen Bygrave is Reader in English at the University of Southampton, UK. His research interests include Enlightenment and Romantic cultures, rhetoric and poetry.

Rebecca Fensome is currently working on the Renaissance and the post-colonial at The Shakespeare Institute, University of Birmingham, UK.

Clare Hanson is Professor of English at the University of Southampton, UK. She is the author of A Cultural History of Pregnancy: Pregnancy, Medicine and Culture in Britain 1750–2000; a study of the short story; books on Katherine Mansfield and Virginia Woolf; and a monograph on the woman’s novel: Hysterical Fictions: the Woman’s Novel in the Twentieth Century (2000).

Lucy Hartley is an Associate Professor of nineteenth-century British literature in the Department of English, University of Michigan, USA. She is the author of Physiognomy and the Meaning of Expression in Nineteenth-Century Culture (2001).

Alex Houen is Senior Lecturer in Modern Anglophone Literature and American Studies at Sheffield University, UK. He is the author of Terrorism in Modern Literature: From Joseph Conrad to Ciaran Carson (2002).

David Macey is an independent scholar and translator – of Society Must be Defended amongst others – and biographer of Frantz Fanon, and the author of The Lives of Michel Foucault.

John Marks is Associate Professor in French, Department of French and Francophone Studies at the University of Nottingham, UK. His research interests include French cultural debates, especially those relating to science and technology.

Achille Mbembe, born in Cameroon and educated at the Sorbonne, Paris, is Research Professor in the Institute of Social and Economic Research at the University of Witwatersrand, South Africa. He is the Stephen Morton is Senior Lecturer in Anglophone Literatures at the University of Southampton, UK. His publications include Salman Rushdie: Fictions of Postcolonial Modernity (2007) and Gayatri Spivak: Ethics, Subalternity and the Critique of Postcolonial Reason (2006).

Julian Reid is a Lecturer in War Studies at King's College, London, UK and Visiting Professor of International Relations at the University of Lapland, Finland. He is the author of numerous critical works on the relations between war and modernity, including The Biopolitics of the War on Terror (2007).