Cambridge Imperial and Post-Colonial Studies Series
General Editor: A. G. Hopkins, Pembroke College, Cambridge

This informative series covers the broad span of modern imperial history while also exploring the recent developments in former colonial states where residues of empire can still be found. The books provide in-depth examinations of empires as competing and complementary power structures, encouraging readers to reconsider their understanding of international and world history during recent centuries.

Titles include:

Tony Ballantyne
ORIENTALISM AND RACE
Aryanism in the British Empire

Anthony J. Barker
SLAVERY AND ANTI-SLAVERY IN MAURITIUS, 1810–33
The Conflict between Economic Expansion and Humanitarian Reform under British Rule

Robert J. Blyth
THE EMPIRE OF THE RAJ
India, Eastern Africa and the Middle East, 1858–1947

Roy Bridges (editor)
IMPERIALISM, DECOLONIZATION AND AFRICA
Studies Presented to John Hargreaves

T. J. Cribb (editor)
IMAGINED COMMONWEALTH
Cambridge Essays on Commonwealth and International Literature in English

Ronald Hyam
BRITAIN’S IMPERIAL CENTURY, 1815–1914: A STUDY OF EMPIRE AND EXPANSION
Third Edition

Robin Jeffrey
POLITICS, WOMEN AND WELL-BEING
How Kerala became a ‘Model’

Gerold Krozewski
MONEY AND THE END OF EMPIRE
British International Economic Policy and the Colonies, 1947–58

Ged Martin
BRITAIN AND THE ORIGINS OF CANADIAN CONFEDERATION, 1837–67

W. David McIntyre
BACKGROUND TO THE ANZUS PACT
Policy-Makers, Strategy and Diplomacy, 1945–55
Francine McKenzie
REDEFINING THE BONDS OF COMMONWEALTH 1939–1948
The Politics of Preference

John Singleton and Paul Robertson
ECONOMIC RELATIONS BETWEEN BRITAIN AND AUSTRALASIA 1945–1970

Cambridge Imperial and Post-Colonial Studies Series
(outside North America only)

You can receive future titles in this series as they are published by placing a standing order. Please contact your bookseller or, in case of difficulty, write to us at the address below with your name and address, the title of the series and the ISBN quoted above.

Customer Services Department, Macmillan Distribution Ltd, Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS, England
The Empire of the Raj
India, Eastern Africa and the Middle East, 1858–1947

Robert J. Blyth
© Robert J. Blyth 2003
All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No paragraph of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, 90 Tottenham Court Road, London WIT 4LP.

Any person who does any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The author has asserted his right to be identified as the author of this work in

First published 2003 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN
Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS and
175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10010
Companies and representatives throughout the world

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN is the global academic imprint of the Palgrave
Macmillan division of St. Martin’s Press, LLC and of Palgrave Macmillan Ltd.
Macmillan® is a registered trademark in the United States, United Kingdom and other countries. Palgrave is a registered trademark in the European Union and other countries.

DOI 10.1057/9780230599116

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data
Blyth, Robert J., 1971–
   The empire of the Raj: India, Eastern Africa and the Middle East, 1858–1947 / Robert J. Blyth.
      p. cm. — (Cambridge imperial and post-colonial studies series)
      Includes bibliographical references and index.
      ISBN 978-1-349-42308-8 (cloth)
      1. Middle East—Colonization. 2. Africa, East—Colonization. 3. Great Britain—Colonies—Africa, East. 4. Great Britain—Colonies—Middle East. 5. Great Britain—Relations—India. 6. India—Relations—Great Britain. I.
         Title. II. Series.
DS44 .B59 2003
325'.32'095409034—dc21
2002032693
10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1
12 11 10 09 08 07 06 05 04 03
To Mum and Dad with love
This page intentionally left blank
Contents

Acknowledgements ix

1  The Empire of the Raj: The Definition, Delineation and Dynamics of the Indian Sphere 1
   Overview: patterns and processes 2
   Approach: problems and perspectives 8

Part I  The Indian Sphere Before 1914

2  ‘A Glacis of Varying Breadth and Dimension’: Persia and the Persian Gulf, c. 1850–1914 15
   The interface of East and West: control of the Tehran mission to 1890 16
   Problems of a dual system: the Imperial challenge, c. 1890–1914 25
   Conclusion 36

3  ‘A Conflict of Directions’: The British Indian Agency at Zanzibar, c. 1856–1883 38
   The Zanzibar connection before the death of Said ibn Sultan 39
   Questioning Indian political control at Zanzibar, c. 1856–70 41
   Crisis at Zanzibar: Bombay and the perils of political control, 1870–73 48
   Finance and the transfer of Zanzibar, c. 1870–83 55
   Conclusion 63

4  ‘He Who Pays the Piper Calls the Tune’: Aden and Somaliland, c. 1869–1914 65
   External challenges, strategic reassessments, and consolidation, 1869–90 66
   Local and Imperial dilemmas: the Somaliland Protectorate in the 1890s 75
   Curzon and the Aden question 84
   Conclusion 88
Part II  The Indian Sphere, 1914–1937

5  ‘A Colony for India’: The Struggle for East Africa, c. 1914–1924

The East Africa campaign and the idea of an Indian colony, 1914–18
Debate in Whitehall, East Africa and India, 1918–19
Mandate or settlement scheme? India and Tanganyika, 1919–21
Losing all round: India and the Kenyan crisis, 1919–c. 1923
Conclusion

6  ‘Basrah is as Near to Delhi as Rangoon’: Realigning the Middle East, 1914–c. 1921

‘A colony for India and Indians’: Mesopotamia, 1914–15
Challenging the Indian sphere, 1916–17
Confusion and compromise: Mesopotamia and beyond, 1917–21
Conclusion

7  ‘When One Comes to Details, Difficulties Bristle’: The Aden Transfer, c. 1917–1937

Opportunity and frustration, c. 1917–21
Accepting the status quo: the debate on compromise, 1922–28
Achieving the transfer, 1928–37
Conclusion

Part III  The End of the Indian Sphere

8  ‘A Sort of Gilded Parochialism’: Conclusions and Postscript

Conclusions
Postscript: India and the Persian Gulf, c. 1928–48

Notes

Bibliography

Index
Acknowledgements

I have spent so long writing – or, in fact, not writing – this book that the number of people and institutions that ought to be listed here has become too large for individual mention. As a result, in a fate normally reserved for unwieldy bibliographies, these acknowledgements will be ‘select’.

The book began as a PhD at the University of Aberdeen. I am greatly indebted to my supervisors, Professor Roy Bridges and Rosemary Tyzack, for their unflagging support and encouragement. A remarkable community of postgraduates made research at Aberdeen particularly rewarding. I must thank Drs Cath Brennan, John Frame and Douglas Hamilton (all of whom had the dubious pleasure of sharing an office with me) for their friendship, generosity and patience, and Dr Fiona Downie for her good humour and wise counsel. Clandestine postgraduate holidays with John, Douglas and Fiona were certainly the highlight of my time in Aberdeen; the hilarious and sometimes riotous adventures on trips to Aviemore, the Kyle of Lochalsh, and Eilean Donan Castle were a real joy.

I am grateful to the Carnegie Trust and the Faculty of Arts and Divinity for their financial support of my research. I must also thank the Centre for Research at the National Maritime Museum for indulging this project with a short but invaluable writing sabbatical and my colleagues at the Museum for their many encouraging comments, some of which were not appreciated at the time.

The members of staff in many libraries, archives and record offices were extremely helpful during the research for this book, but I would like to thank, in particular, the Queen Mother Library (University of Aberdeen), the Caird Library (National Maritime Museum), and most of all the splendid team at the India Office Records. I am greatly indebted to Luciana O’Flaherty at Palgrave Macmillan for the exceptional patience and understanding she showed during the painfully slow delivery of the typescript. I also wish a pox on the burglars who availed themselves of a laptop computer containing several thousand words of text I had failed to save to disk – always make a back up!

I am enormously grateful to my family, who have supported my research and writing in so many ways. I thank my brother, Scott, for providing a number of memorable distractions during the completion of my PhD and for being there when it really mattered. This book is dedicated to my parents who have been a constant source of support.
Acknowledgements

I cannot adequately express my deep gratitude for their love, generosity and kindness over the years. Thank you.

Finally, there is only one appropriate disclaimer for those aggrieved by this invidious selection: PECCAVI.

Greenwich                    Robert J. Blyth