Part II

Prosaic Religion and the Construction of Lived Worlds

This peasant-but-modern political sphere was not bereft of the agency of gods, spirits, and other supernatural beings.

—Chakrabarty, Provincializing Europe

Today it is the colonized peoples who assume the full and ethical and political condition described by Marx as that of the proletariat.

—Barthes, Mythologies