Community Media
This page intentionally left blank
Community Media

International Perspectives

Edited by

Linda K. Fuller
To my fellow volunteers at
Wilbraham Public Access
Little Red Schoolhouse
Wilbraham, Massachusetts
Contents

List of Illustrations x
Acknowledgments xi

Introduction 1
Linda K. Fuller

I Aboriginal/Indigenous Experiences

1 Remote Beginnings, Metropolitan Developments: Community and Indigenous Television in Australia 21
   Elinor Rennie

2 (re)Coloring the Public Broadcasting System in Canada: A Case Study of the Aboriginal Peoples Television Network 31
   Lorna Roth

3 Community Radio and Development: Tribal Audiences in South India 43
   Yesudhasan Thomas Jayaprakash and Brian Shoesmith

4 Media as Constructor of Ethnic Minority Identity: A Native American Case Study 55
   Ritva Levo-Henriksson

II Current Case Studies

5 Use of Television as a Community Media by Farmers in Bangladesh 69
   M. Abul Kashem

6 Restricted Opportunities for Community Broadcasting in Belgium 77
   Frieda Saeys and Tomas Coppens
7 Video-Identity: Images and Sounds of Citizenship Construction in Brazil
   Rogério Santana Lourenco

8 Implications of Globalization for Community Broadcasting in Ghana
   Kwasi Ansu-Kyeremeh

9 Vox Populi or Lonely Voices in the Wasteland of the Ionosphere: The Case of Israeli Community Television
   Hillel Nossek

10 Asian Models of Community Communication, With Kazakhstan as a Case Study
    Saule Barlybaeva and Alma I. Rusetmova

11 Top-Down Community Media: A Participant Observation from Singapore
    Linda K. Fuller

12 Television to Save a Language and a Culture: The Basque Case
    Carmelo Garitaonandia and Miguel Angel Casado

13 The Power of Participatory Community: Lessons Learned from Bangkokian Experience
    Parichart Sthapitanonda and Chaiwat Thirapantu

14 Civic Adventure in Turkey: Creation and Evolution of TOSAM and the “Radio Democracy” Project
    Dogu Ergil

III Virtual Community Visions

15 The Architectures of Cyberdating: Personal Advertisement Photography and the Unworking of Community
    Eric Freedman

16 “Free Speech” and U.S. Public Access Producers
    John W. Higgins

17 Call Me Impure: Myths and Paradigms of Participatory Communication
    Alfonso Gumucio Dagron

18 The People’s Communication Charter: Global Communications and People’s Rights
    Cees J. Hamelink
19  Multitheoretical Approaches to Community Media: Capturing Specificity and Diversity 219
    Nico Carpentier, Rico Lie, and Jan Servaes

20  Conceptualizing Community: Implications for Policymaking in a Cyberage 237
    Concetta M. Stewart and Mairi Innes Pileggi

About the Contributors 249

Index 255
List of Illustrations

Figures

19.1 Positioning the Four Theoretical Approaches 220
19.2 Defining Community 224
19.3 Access and Participation of the Community 224
19.4 Private and Public Domains in Contemporary Western Societies 228
19.5 Media, Market, and State 229
19.6 Civil Society and Community Media as Rhizome 231

Graphs

12.1 Percentages by Program Genre in ETB-1 and ETB-2 145
12.2 Profile of ETB Audience 146

Tables

8.1 Live Broadcast of Foreign Radio/Television Programs 106
12.1 The Autonomous Televisions in Spain 141
19.1 The Four Theoretical Approaches—A Summary 221
Acknowledgments

This project has been at least a quarter-century in the making, beginning with my involvement in my local Public Access Cable Television station in Wilbraham, Massachusetts since its inception to working with the Community Media Working Group of the International Association for Media and Communication Research (IAMCR), the International Communication Association (ICA), the World Communication Association (WCA), the Union for Democratic Communication (UDC), Our Media/ Nuestros Medios, World Association of Christian Communication (WACC), and the international division of the Alliance for Community Media (ACM). As you can read from the list below, input in a number of ways from other people dedicated to community media has been invaluable. My heartfelt appreciation goes to the following individuals, whose presentations, papers, and practical work in the field have contributed to this volume: Amy Aidman, Center for Media Education, Washington, DC; Alain Ambrosi, Videazimut, Montreal, Quebec; Sister Elvira Arcenas, special friend and webmaster of my mentor’s (the late George Gerbner) Web site; Chris Atton, School of Communication Arts, Napier University, Edinburgh; Pat Aufderheide, School of Communication, American University; Karen Banks, GreenNet, London; John Barker, Media Institute of Southern Africa, Windhoek, Namibia; Bernadette Barker-Plummer, Communications, University of San Francisco; Pierre Belanger, UNDA: International Catholic Association for Radio and TV, Brussels, Belgium; Kiron Bansal, Electronic Media Production Centre, Indira Gandhi National Open University, New Delhi, India; Louis Bosshart, University of Fribourg, Switzerland; Sara Brombart, Fundacion Friedrich Ebert, Quito, Ecuador; Steve Buckley, Director, Community Media Association; Heather Budge-Reid, Panos, London; Sue Buske, the Buske Group; Andrew Calabrese, Communications, University of Colorado/Boulder; Ulla Carlsson, Nordicom, Sweden; Maria del Carmen Cevallos, Grupo de los Ocho, Quito, Ecuador; Joseph Chan, Journalism/Communication, Chinese University, Hong Kong; Soharvir S. Chaudhary, School of Education, Indira Gandhi National Open University, New Delhi, India; Amy Cheung, Asian Community Development Association; Charlotte F. Cole, VP, Education and Research, Sesame Workshop; Royal D. Colle, International Studies, Cornell University;
Caroline Cunningham, Director, Wilbraham Public Access; Nick Couldry, Sociology, London School of Economics; Peter Dahlgren, University of Lund, Sweden; Patrick Daley, Communications, University of New Hampshire; Marjan deBruin, CARIMAC, Kingston, Jamaica; Tony Dowmunt, Media/Communication, Goldsmiths College, London; John D. H. Downing, Director, Global Media Research Center, College of Mass Communication and Media Arts, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, IL; Hopeton Dunn, CARIMAC, Kingston, Jamaica; Warren Feek, Executive Director, the Communication Initiative; Carlos Fontes, Communications, Worcester State College; Julie Frechette, Communications, Worcester State College; Margaret Gillan, Community Media Network, Dublin, Ireland; Faye Ginsburg, Anthropology, New York University; the late Anura Goonaskera, AMIC, Singapore; Denise Gray-Felder, The Rockefeller Foundation; Barry Gunter, Sheffield University, UK; Jacques Guyot, Haute Bretagne, France; DeeDee Halleck, founder of Paper Tiger TV, UC/San Diego; Leo Hansen, Beauftragter fur den Offen Kanal, Hamburg, Germany; Rahmah Hashim, Communication, Universiti Kebangsaan, Malaysia; Michael Havice, Communication, Marquette University; Christer Hederstrom, Global Village CAT, Stockholm, Sweden; Rob Huesca, Communications, Trinity University, San Antonio, TX; Beverly James, Communications, University of New Hampshire; Nick Jankowski, Communications, University of Nijmegen, The Netherlands; Per Jauert, Communications, University of Aarhus, Denmark; Klaus Bruhn Jensen, Film and Media Studies, University of Aarhus, Denmark; Doug Kellner, Graduate School of Education and Information Studies, UCLA; Dorothy Kidd, Media Studies, University of San Francisco; the late Dirk Koning of the Community Media Center, Grand Rapids, MI; Catheryn Koss, International Programs, World Neighbors; John A. Lent, Communications, Temple University; Peter Lewis, London School of Economics; Anker Brink Lund, Journalism, Roskilde, Denmark; Knut Lundby, Director, InterMedia, University of Oslo; Sophie K. Ly, AMARC, Montreal, Quebec, Canada; Sonia Marcus, videographer and activist; Michael Meadows, Griffith University, Australia; Toshiko Miyazaki, Yokohama, Japan; Carmen Gomez Mont, Universite Iberoamericana, Mexico; Joy Morrison, Journalism, University of Alaska/Fairbanks; Charles Morrow, WETV—Global Access TV, Ottawa, Canada; Bill Mosher, The Visionaries Institute of Suffolk University; Oswald Neptune, Haitian American Public Health Initiatives; Margie Nicholson, Arts, Entertainment & Media Management, Columbia College, Chicago; Alan O’Connor, Cultural Studies, Trent University, Peterborough, Ontario; Roberta Pearson, Film Studies, Nottingham University; Ros Petelin, Editor, Australian Journal of Communication; Ole Prehn, Faculty of Humanities, Aalborg University, Denmark; Sean O’Siochru, NEXUS Research, Dublin, Ireland; Clemencia Rodriguez, Communication, University of Oklahoma; Dave Rushton, Chair, Channel 6 Broadcasting Ltd, Edinburgh, Scotland; Chuck Sherwood, Community Media Visioning Partners; Dov Shinar, The New School of Media Studies, College of Management, Tel Aviv, Israel; Abiodun
Shobowale, Director, Global African Independent Network; John Sinclair, Faculty of Arts, University of Melbourne, Australia; Deborah P. Snow, Community Technology Centers’ Network; Laura Stein, Radio-TV-Film, University of Texas/Austin; Gavin Stewart, Journalism, Rhodes University, Grahamstown, South Africa; George Stoney, Professor Emeritus of Media Ecology, New York University, “grandfather” of the public access movement, and early inspiration; Fay Sudweeks, Key Centre of Design Computing, Department of Architectural and Design Science, Sydney, Australia; Karen Thorne, Media for Change Agency (MECA), Cape Town, South Africa; Francis N. Wete, Deputy General Manager of Cameroon Radio Television; Aidan White, International Federation of Journalists, Brussels, Belgium; Tony Wilson, School of Literacy and Communication Studies, Deakin University, Australia; Pedro Zurita, Videotecca des Sur, New York, and many more persons whose contributions to the field of democratic media continue to this day.

Of course it goes without saying that I am highly indebted to the contributors of this volume, who have stayed the course and worked hard to keep their chapters up to date and relevant on many levels. One of the best parts of editing a book is getting to know one another (better); throughout, we have shared both intellectual and personal stories.

In addition, let me acknowledge the high professionalism of Farideh Koohi-Kamali and her assistant, Julia Cohen, at Palgrave Macmillan and the fun I had working with them. It was a special treat for me to realize, when we met for lunch in New York City, that they are located in the famous Flatiron Building (Fifth Avenue, between 22nd and 23rd streets), designed in 1902 by architect David Burnham. They published my edited book Sport, Rhetoric, and Gender: Historical Perspectives and Media Representations (2006), and I happily anticipate more collaboration with them in the future.

Quite frankly, there is so much interest in the field of community media around the world that I have already been approached about future volumes relative to the subject. It reminds me of a slogan that a community access television center uses: “Empowering Community Voices and Visions”—how satisfying it is, to realize we are part of a wider world movement.

Linda K. Fuller
Wilbraham, MA