The prospective resident must confront the issues of recruitment and selection and from there a choice of internships. Most trainees must reckon with the issue of a substantial debt burden. Also some need to be knowledgeable about imbalances in geographic opportunities during internship and beyond. A few may also have to confront adverse circumstances during their residency years. All these issues are addressed in Part I.

Chapter 1—Centralized Interviews for Prospective Radiology Residents
Chapter 2—A Critique of the Transitional Internship
Chapter 3—Looking Back at the Value of the Internship
Chapter 4—Radiology Residents: Internship Survey
Chapter 5—The Debt Crisis and Radiology
Chapter 6—Radiology Residency Positions: Growth, Distribution and California
Chapter 7—Radiology Resident Recruitment: Robustness in an Uncertain Environment
Chapter 8—Radiology Residencies: Disasters and Preparedness