Civilization advances by extending the number of important operations which we can perform without thinking about them.

—Alfred North Whitehead