An understanding of sport, athletes and their training methods gives an invaluable insight into the rise of sports-related oral health risks.