. . . the soil horizon tapped by the roots of trees derives by capillarity, from the level of the groundwater, its perennial supply of moisture.

W.A. Cannon (1913)